President's message

Dr. John M. Hilpert

Great to be at Delta State

Life's twists and turns are frequently unpredictable but always interesting. Last year at this time, my wife and I had no idea that we would be living in Mississippi, yet here we are, happy and comfortable at Delta State. We're excited by new places to explore and new people to enjoy. Best of all there are new challenges that keep us engaged. To say that we are pleased to have this opportunity would be a serious understatement.

Beyond the visual impressions of a beautiful campus and lots of smiling faces, there is real substance to this university that expresses itself as both academic excellence and a determination to serve the people and communities of the Mississippi Delta. This is surely not news to all of you who are alumni and friends of DSU. You know intimately what we are in the process of discovering: namely, that Delta State University is a wonderful institution. And you won't be surprised to learn that the warmth of welcome we have experienced has made us feel a part of the family.

After just a few weeks, the president's cabinet and I determined that our goal would be simple and straightforward: Delta State will be the best regional university in America. This ambition means that we must couple the educational excellence that is the heritage of the institution with a determination to offer meaningful research and services targeted at the challenges and opportunities of the Delta. Faculty and staff have long understood the mission of serving the region, and today there are more than 100 on-going projects and programs that partner DSU with communities, school districts, local and statewide agencies, and other organizations. We will continue to build on this remarkable base of service.

One of the most obvious and enjoyable roles that Delta State has identified for itself is that of preserving and promoting the unique culture of the Delta. This commitment shows itself in the services of the Capps Archives, the activities of the Delta Center for Culture and Learning, and the daily interactions in the classrooms, performance halls, and labs of the university. It is what gives Delta State University its unique character.

As my wife and I look forward to the Delta State years that stretch before us, we're glad that we will be part of this wonderful institution's future. You can help us share in its past with your anecdotes and recollections. Thank you for making us feel so welcome.

Sincerely,

John M. Hilpert
President

Delta State will be the best regional university in America.

Fulcher promoted to Executive Director

Keith Fulcher has been promoted to Executive Director of the Alumni and Foundation. Fulcher, who earned a B.S.E. from Delta State in 1983 and a M.Ed. in 1985, began working at Delta State in 1996 as Director of Development. Fulcher will oversee the offices of Development, Foundation, and Alumni.

While at Delta State Fulcher has worked on two campaigns generating $20 million dollars in private support for the University. Fulcher and his wife Anne have two children, Christian and John.

Starkey named Dean

Dr. Paul Starkey has been named dean of Graduate & Continuing Studies. Previously, Starkey served as Director of Continuing Education since 2001 and as an associate professor of management since 1986. He served as the chair of the local advisory committee for the 2003 presidential search.

As dean of Graduate & Continuing Studies, he is responsible for all graduate education at DSU as well as educational outreach for the University. Emphasis in graduate education will be given to enhance recruitment and retention of high quality graduate students. In continuing studies he will focus on expanding executive and certificate programs, and increasing the amount of employer specific training done throughout the University.

Starkey received his B.B.A. in 1984 from DSU and his M.B.A. in 1985 and Ph.D. in 1998 from the University of Mississippi. He is married to the former Donna Smithers of Cleveland. They have two children, Ellis, 10, and Jake, 7.

Faculty member speaks at Graduation

Faculty member Dr. Jimmie "Rose" Strahan made the commencement address at the December graduation ceremonies. Strahan is the first faculty member selected to serve in this role.

"I was honored that the 'University' chose me to be the first faculty member to give the commencement address," says Strahan, Chair of the Department of Mathematics. "I talked to the graduates about the 'book' that they are writing which will be the story of their lives. It is also important they remember the past and learn from it. I also shared some suggestions for the future, such as setting realistic goals, being willing to take a risk, building relationships with people, and finding joy in life," she adds.

Strahan received the "S.E. Kossman Outstanding Teacher Award" from Delta State in 1997. In 2000 the yearbook committee selected Strahan as their dedicatee. She has been named to Who's Who in American Education, and received the Certificate of Commendation from the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics for her work in mathematics education.

Building dedicated to Odealier Morgan

Last semester the University held a ceremony to name the laundry building after long-time employee Odealier J. Morgan. The historical occasion marked a University first because Morgan is the first African American to have a building named in her honor. She is also the first hourly wage employee to receive this honor. Morgan holds the record for the longest employment at Delta State: 47 years. She began working in the DSU laundry in 1956 and retired last spring. While on staff, Morgan never missed a day of work. She was named Employee of the Month in March 2001.

Brown recognized as Educator of the Year

In recognition of his efforts to promote the understanding of history and culture of the Mississippi Delta and its significance to the rest of the world, Dr. Luther Brown, director of the Delta Center for Culture and Learning received the Humanities Educator of the Year Award from the Mississippi Humanities Council.

"The Delta is a major contributor to American culture, and it is also a really good place to explore what it means to be an American," says Brown. "I came here specifically because I wanted to live in this important region and learn more about its history and culture, and I'm passionate about helping others do the same."

Brown is the founding Director of the Delta Center for Culture and Learning.

The Center presents classes on the history and culture of the Delta, provides interpretive tours, and is the home of The Blues Highway Association, a group of people who promote heritage tourism, historic preservation, and the interpretation of Delta culture. One important activity of this group is the establishment of a Mississippi Delta National Heritage Area within the National Park Service.

Brown was formally trained as an ecologist and has written two textbooks in the field. He was founding member of the New Century College at George Mason University. This College integrated the disciplines, allowing students to explore the connections among the sciences, arts, and humanities. Brown also directed the Center for Field Studies at George Mason.

For more information about the Delta Center for Culture and Learning call (662) 846-4311.

Nursing students part of an elite group

Nursing students now have access to state of the art medical equipment in the classroom. Two nursing associations and a leading healthcare technology manufacturer recently donated an oxygen-monitoring equipment and other educational tools.

The American Association of Critical-Care Nurses (AACN) and the American Organization of Nurse Executives (AONE) collaborated with Nellcor in donating advanced-technology Nellcor pulse oximeters and educational resources to a handful of nursing programs across the United States. The gift to DSU was the only one of its kind given to a Mississippi School of Nursing.

"We are very grateful to the collaborative efforts of these healthcare agencies in providing our skills lab environment with the Nellcor N-395 Pulse Oximeter. This new form of technology will help support us in a more efficient way of educating our future nurses," says Dr. Maureen Gruich, Dean of the School of Nursing.

A pulse oximeter offers a cost-effective way to measure a patient's heart rate and the amount of oxygen in the blood without piercing the skin. Critical care units utilize the equipment, and other patient care areas are discovering the oximeter's benefits.

This program is a classic demonstration of how professional organizations and industry can work together to create a lasting impact," comments AONE President Rita Turley, MS, RN. "Nellcor's generous support of education and technology will impact an entire generation of nurses, and the countless patients for whom they care over the course of their careers."

Faculty to utilize technology in education

Six faculty members have been recognized as 2003-04 Technology Champions. The individuals are Dr. Mark Butler, professor of Music; Dr. Scott Hutchens, assistant professor of Psychology; Dr. Garry Jennings, professor of Political Science; Dr. Jerry Kandies, associate professor of Computer Information Systems; Dr. Robert Moore, assistant professor of Criminal Justice and Lisa Oswalt, instructor in Nursing.

"This program was created to encourage technology use on campus and in the classroom," says Dr. Larry Lambert, director of the Technology Learning Center. "This is our second group of champions. The program was originally funded with one-time money from the College of Education. Response and support was so strong, campus leaders made a commitment to continue funding Technology Champions," he adds.

Butler plans to transform the upper level orchestration class from a traditional lecture/demonstration format to a digital laboratory experience. Coursework will include modules allowing students to work at their own pace with tutorial class meetings in the lab.

Hutchens will enhance psychology courses by implementing PowerPoint presentations with scanned/digital photographs, digital video clips, and online quizzes. His goal is to offer students a wealth of information at their fingertips.

Jennings will develop web pages and web resources to support courses in social sciences and to provide student access to newspaper sources, web resources and data about the conflicts in Palestine, North Ireland, and race relations in the United States.

Scott Hutchens

Lisa Oswalt

Garry Jennings

Kandies plans to improve instruction in coursework dealing with computer systems analysis and design through the purchase and implementation of LANSchool which teaches the strategies and techniques of analyzing and designing real-world information systems through the use of computer assisted software engineering (CASE), and prototyping tools.

Moore will create an online Master's Degree in Criminal Justice. Through digital recording and streaming video, students will be able to hear and see the professor's explanation for materials and gain insight into legal systems by attending (virtually) arguments provided by the State of Mississippi and other court systems through live webcasts of oral arguments (between prosecution and defense) as well as Mississippi Supreme Court arguments.

Oswalt intends to provide students at all levels with computer learning modules on campus Pipeline for access at any time to material on test preparation, test taking strategies, time management and organization, and writing proficiency for higher education. The modules will provide a writing tutorial designed to aid students in creating an outline, reviewing material for relevant content and writing a college level paper. Test preparation, test design, and test-taking strategies will define differences in college testing and provide opportunities to improve test scores.

Faculty members initiate proposed projects with support from the individual's respective chair and dean. Projects may be developed with technology applications in traditional classroom and distance learning using WebCT, videoconferencing, the internet, digital photography and video. Individuals participate in professional development through attending conferences and workshops and making presentations. Technology Champions also promote technology among peers and become campus advocates.

Simpson selected

Melanie Suzanne Simpson, a student from Tuscaloosa, Alabama, left the Delta in January for Washington, D.C. She was selected as this year's Congressional Fellow and will receive college credit while interning in Senator Thad Cochran's office. Delta Council, Senator Cochran's office, and Delta State are sponsors of the program which was established three years ago.

"My main objective is to learn. This is an opportunity of a lifetime to learn about anything and everything they throw in front of me," says Simpson. "This is a chance to learn from the inside instead of memorizing book facts. I have a chance to be involved with several upcoming decisions affecting the Delta. This is a wonderful way to learn about this area from a national perspective," she adds.

Simpson's interest in politics is relatively new. Transferring to Delta State in 2001, she initially planned on completing a degree in music. "I discovered my passion by working in the Madison Center," she says. The Madison Center is one of the University's Centers of Excellence that focuses on political and community engagement.

"We are pleased to be a part of sustaining the necessary support to continue this Fellowship in Senator Cochran's office. We know that the young adults chosen to participate in this Fellowship each year will return to the Delta with a real appreciation for the values which all of us place on good public policy," states Dan Branton, President of Delta Council.

The Congressional Fellow spends approximately 15 weeks as a paid intern, learning firsthand about the inner workings of Congress and the Government. While in D.C. Simpson will receive a monthly stipend provided by Delta Council. Delta State awards a special scholarship and provides transportation.

Mr. & Miss DSU elected

The student body elected Jeffrey Farris and Sayward Ely as Mr. and Miss DSU. Jeffrey is a senior Education major from Brandon and Sayward is a senior English major from Memphis, Tenn. The Student Government Association sponsors the elections.

Precision Flight Team soars

Delta State University's Precision Flight Team finished first in three categories at the 2003 Regional IV Safety and Flight Evaluation Conference (SAFECON) in Monroe, Louisiana. The team claimed first place overall and placed first in flight and ground events. The victory earns DSU an invitation to the 2004 National SAFECON in Murfreesboro, TN. Other collegiate aviation teams participating were from Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas.

Noonan receives award

At a ceremony held last summer at Fort Myer, Virginia, overlooking Arlington Cemetery and the Pentagon, Diane Lindsey Noonan, a 1967 graduate, was presented the "Distinguished Civilian Service Award" by the Chief of Staff of the Army. She received the award "for distinguished civilian service to the United States Army." The award was established by directive of the Secretary of the Army in May 1956 and is awarded to civilians who provide distinguished service that makes a substantial contribution to the accomplishment of the Army. The award consists of a gold medal, a lapel button and a certificate. Diane is the wife of Lt. General Bob Noonan, who recently retired as Deputy Chief of Staff for Intelligence for the Army.

For 35 years, Diane contributed significantly to both the Army and the nation not only through her work on behalf of soldiers and their families, but also through her representation of the Army and the United States in the foreign liaison community, both at home and abroad.

Throughout her many years of association with numerous Army units, Diane's efforts on behalf of soldiers and their families contributed significantly to the well-being of Army families. Through her participation in Army family support programs, she acted as a proponent for the family and its welfare in the army community.

While stationed with her husband in Hawaii, she was actively involved in a prayer ministry where she visited and prayed with injured and terminally ill patients at the Army Medical Center. Immediately after the 9/11 terrorist attack on the Pentagon, she and her daughter, Whitney, volunteered countless hours on the phones at the Fort Myer Family Center (adjacent to the Pentagon) to answer inquiries and assist families and friends of those affected by the attack. In the following months, they visited wounded soldiers from both the Afghanistan and Iraq wars at Walter Reed Hospital and hosted some in her home.

As an unofficial ambassador to the Foreign Attache community she worked tirelessly on behalf of the Army and the nation. Diane opened her home and hosted numerous senior foreign military and civilian officials for dinners and receptions. She also acted as hostess for the Army's most important annual social events for the Washington Corps of Military Attaches.

Diane and Bob have a daughter, Whitney Casstevens, of New York City and a son Bo, of Boston.

Elizabeth Smith named Miss DSU

Elizabeth Smith (center), of Grenada, was chosen Miss Delta State University following pageant competition held February 5th. First Alternate was Brandy Watkins (left), of Cleveland, and Second Alternate was Devin Presley (right), of Madison. Smith will represent DSU in the Miss Mississippi Pageant this summer.

REUNITED...

Knight joins firm

Hursch & Eppenberger, LLC, a nationally ranked law firm, proudly has named Holly N. Knight as a member of the firm in the Nashville, Tennessee office. Knight's practice includes regional representation of banks, financial institutions and secured lenders. She is also involved in complex bankruptcy litigation, including preference actions, dischargeability actions, claims litigations, and litigation involving asset recovery and disposition. She has been involved in numerous workouts and reorganizations of businesses of different sizes and different industries, and has represented the interests of both creditors and debtors in such matters. Knight's practice areas also include general civil and commercial litigation.

She is a member of the American Bar Association, the Tennessee Bar Association, the Nashville Bar Association, and the National Association of Chapter Thirteen Trustees.

Knight earned her J.D. from the University of Memphis School of law in 1996. While pursuing her law degree, she was the Regional Champion of the 1996 American College of Trial Lawyers National Mock Trial Competition, and Student President of the Association of Women Attorneys. She graduated with honors with a B.S. degree from Delta State in 1991.

Jobe Hall renovations

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the renovations to E.R. Jobe Hall were held in November. The $3.9 million project is expected to be completed during the Fall 2004 semester. Specifications for the renovations include adding four classrooms and updating the auditorium, which is housed within the building.

"The auditorium will be completely reworked with wider rows, new seats, lighting, and new 'behind-the-scenes' stage equipment," says Mr. William Morehead, vice president for finance at Delta State. "Faculty offices will be enlarged and the overall number increased," he adds. Jobe Hall was originally built in 1969. This is the building's first major renovation.

The Jobe Hall renovation is one of many Delta State construction projects being initiated or completed during the current fiscal year. Others include Kent Wyatt Student Services Building, Dorgan Center, Chadwick-Dickson, Coahoma County Higher Education Center and Cutrer House.

A fairy tale that came true

The fairy tale begins back in the fall of 1977, when Regina Byrd and Donnie Ruis first met after a football game. At that time Donnie was playing quarterback and Regina was involved with Delta Playhouse. Donnie and Regina became very close and even discussed marriage at the innocent and naive age of 18. However, the fairy tale was interrupted as a result of Coach Robert McGraw leaving Delta State to go to East Tennessee State University and convincing Donnie's parents, and Donnie, reluctantly, that it would be the best situation for Donnie to go with him to East Tennessee State, a much bigger school. At that time Donnie had mixed emotions about leaving Regina and Delta State, especially in light of the fact that he had won the starting quarterback position for the Statesmen. The fact that Donnie could not explain to Regina that he was leaving and where he was going because it would have been an NCAA violation also complicated the situation.

found himself reminiscing of Delta State and the girl he loved and began to realize the magnitude of the mistake he had made. Over the years, Donnie continued to daydream of his short period of time at Delta State, which centered on Regina.

Twenty-four years after Donnie left Delta State, and after thirteen arduous years of practicing law, Donnie conjured up the nerve to locate Regina. Donnie gave Regina a call, and explained the events that occurred back in 1977, which at that time he was not able to disclose. After the initial contact, Donnie and Regina talked continuously literally six to eight hours a day. On the third phone call, Donnie asked Regina if she would marry him and move to Tennessee. Regina accepted after careful consideration, which lasted about a millisecond, and Donnie got busy searching for the perfect ring and car for her wedding present. On June 6, 2003, Donnie returned to Delta State and picked up Regina. They immediately went to the football dorm (Hugh White) where Donnie proposed because this was the place where they had parted 24 years earlier. Donnie took Regina back to Tennessee and they were married on June 9, 2003.

Kyle delivers again

As an advocate of the importance of the arts education in the life of every person, Jack Kyle, a 1972 graduate, and Delta State's 2000 Outstanding Alumnus of the Year, once again brings a high profile exhibition to the United States. Kyle serves as Executive Director of the Mississippi Commission for International Cultural Exchange (MCICE).

The Glory of Baroque Dresden will be the fourth international exhibition presented by the Commission and follows the 1996 Palaces of St. Petersburg, the 1998 Splendors of Versailles, and the 2001 The Majesty of Spain.

The Glory of Baroque Dresden exhibition will be the first major exhibition from Dresden, Germany, to be presented in North America since the reunification of East and West Germany into the Federal Republic of Germany. The exhibition is open from March 1 - September 6, 2004 at the Mississippi Arts Pavilion in downtown Jackson.

For additional information visit the exhibition website at www.gloryofdresden.com.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR...

I enjoy the magazine even though there are a few names and faces that I don't know. I wish you would dig in the files and find information on people in my years. I grew up in Cleveland but have lost touch with old friends after being in Crenshaw for fifty years. I moved here to be near one of my daughters. Life is great!

Thanks,
Harriet Bachman Rutledge, Class of 1933

Janice Wyatt Mississippi Summer Arts Institute

The MSAI was established in 1998 as a summer program for the purpose of establishing a regional model of excellence in arts education.

No longer do young aspiring artists need to travel far away to begin or continue their pursuit in the arts. The Janice Wyatt Mississippi Summer Arts Institute (MSAI) at the University's Bologna Performing Arts Center provides an opportunity for young artists to realize their dreams and discover and explore their talents.

MSAI was established in 1998 as a summer program for the purpose of establishing a regional model of excellence in arts education. MSAI offers opportunities for exposure and training in dance, theater, music, visual, and literary arts. Young artists work first hand with a distinguished body of accomplished faculty who have international recognition. In addition to superior instruction, the participants have access to one of the premier houses for art and entertainment in the Southeast, the Bologna Performing Arts Center.

Participants for the summer program must be 12-18 years of age, and are selected from auditions held in the Spring at various places in the state. While at MSAI, the young artists will live on-campus in dormitory housing where they have the opportunity to get to know fellow participants and make lasting relationships.

There are 3 series in which a young artist can participate: the Broadway Theater Series, the Creative Artists' Theater Series, and the Core Arts Series. The young artists who participate in the Broadway Theater Series experience what it is like to be a Broadway performer for three and a half weeks. Creative and innovative rehearsals and a respectful and considerate environment are components that make renditions like Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" come to life on the stage of the Delta and Pineland Theater of the Bologna Performing Arts Center. The summer of 2004 will be bringing to the stage a production of the ever popular Grease.

The Creative Artists' Theater Series presents young artists with the opportunity to experience a high-energy, multi-faceted arts based production. During this series the experiences range from multi-media opera to film, dance, and music. Young artists work hard and fast, and are required to learn dance, movement, and theater all in one week.

As Core Arts participants, young artists receive diverse and intensive instruction in dance-music, and the visual and literary arts. The Core Arts Series creates a supportive and entertaining environment wherein the young artists collaborate with an artistic faculty composed of painters, musicians, poets, actors, dancers, and sculptors. The Core Arts Series is the pentacle of artistic creativity for those young people who are searching for an outlet to express their artistic beliefs.

For more information about the Janice Wyatt Mississippi Summer Arts Institute contact the Bologna Performing Arts Center at (662) 846-4844.

The 1956 Delta State Men's Basketball team won the N.A.A. District 19 Championship by beating Mississippi Southern of Hattiesburg. The team was scheduled to play in the National N.A.A. Tournament in Kansas City, Missouri, but was denied the chance to win the national title.

Mississippi Governor, J.P. Coleman, and the Mississippi State Legislature prevented the team from making the trip to Kansas City because the team was scheduled to play Southern Illinois University or Texas Southern, which had African American players on their teams.

The Delta State team was scheduled to leave Cleveland via a bus to Memphis and then fly to Kansas City for the National Tournament. The team made a team picture just a few days before they were to depart to Memphis. On the day the team was scheduled to leave for Memphis Delta State Coach John Ray Ricks called the team together to inform them they could not make the trip to Kansas City and the National Tournament. The office of the Governor and representatives of the 1956 legislature had called President William M. Kethley to inform Dr. Kethley that the team could not make the trip to the National Tournament. It was Coach John Ray Ricks' unhappy task to inform the team that they were to be denied the chance for the title. This was sad news for the team, especially for those who had never been further north of Memphis.

NOTE...

This team had 15 wins and 7 losses during the 1955-56 season at Delta State. The team beat Southern Mississippi, now U.S.M. of Hattiesburg for the NAIA District 19 Championship and the right to play in the National Tournament in Kansas City/Hutchinson, Kansas.

Mississippi Governor J.P. Coleman, the Mississippi State Legislature, and the State Board of Trustees denied the 1955-56 Statesmen a chance to play in the 1956 National Tournament.

Delta State College president, William M. Keithley, bowed to State government pressure and informed Coach John Ray Ricks the team (JULY 1967) play in the national tournament because DSU was not to play integrated teams.

Alumnus makes gift of Life Insurance

Daniel "Jabo" O'Rourke, Jr.

In 1985 Daniel "Jabo" O'Rourke, Jr., a 1951 graduate, purchased a $20,000 life insurance policy and named Delta State as the sole beneficiary. Dan's life ended on December 2, 2003, but his love for his alma mater lives on in the form of an endowment in his name. Dan attended Homecoming each year and enjoyed reminiscing with his former football and baseball teammates.

Thanks to the plans Dan made with his life insurance, additional students will be able to enjoy a Delta State education through the Daniel O'Rourke Memorial Scholarship Fund.

"For many, life insurance has been a great investment, providing financial peace of mind. But now the children are grown, the mortgage is paid and other assets have become the safety net," states Peter Jernberg, President, Delta State University Foundation.

"Donating life insurance is a way Dan fulfilled his desire to support the University," Jernberg says. "I encourage more alumni to follow Dan's example, which will make a difference in the lives of our students."

Another option may be to create a new policy with Delta State as the charitable beneficiary. Perhaps you make annual gifts and would like to make an additional gift to pay an insurance premium, which would increase the size of your ultimate gift.

You can also donate life insurance as part of another gift. For example, if you donate appreciated assets, such as securities or real estate, then Delta State—with your permission—can sell the assets tax free and purchase an insurance policy. You'll receive a current tax deduction on the donated assets and increase the size of your gift.

As you might expect, the tax implications of gifts of life insurance can be complicated, so consult a financial advisor before proceeding.

"Donating life insurance is a way Dan fulfilled his desire to support the University." —Peter Jernberg

Joe and Victor Aguzzi, of Cleveland, remember playing hide and go seek as children on the campus of Delta State University, then known as Delta State Teachers College. In honor of the Aguzzi family's longstanding relationship with the University the brothers recently made a $100,000 gift to endow scholarships for deserving and needy students.

The Aguzzi family arrived in the United States in 1895 from Italy and settled in Lake Village, Arkansas. They were one of 100 Italian families to settle in the area and began making a living by farming. The family moved to Cleveland in 1907, sixteen years before Delta State was founded.

The brothers established the scholarship because of strong belief in education. "We didn't have the opportunity to go to college," said Joe. "It was a different time back then, and we just didn't go. Our farm has done well over the years so we have encouraged our children and grandchildren to earn a college degree."

Between Joe and Victor, all eleven of their children have attended Delta State University with eight receiving degrees. The others completed their education in fields not offered by Delta State. Now, many of their grandchildren have received degrees with several others still attending.

"Delta State is the perfect place for a student to begin their career. We want to help others, who like us, might not see higher education as a reality due to finances," said Joe, a member of the Delta State University Foundation Board of Directors.

"The University is privileged to have dedicated supporters like the Aguzzis. They have a long history with Delta State. We are pleased that the relationship is not only continuing, but growing," said Dr. John M. Hilpert, President of Delta State University.

He added, "There will be many students who are able to receive an education thanks to the Aguzzis' generosity."

To establish a scholarship at Delta State University, or to make a gift of an existing scholarship, please contact Keith Fulcher at 662-846-4708 or e-mail kfulcher@deltastate.edu.

*Editor's note: Victor Aguzzi passed away on February 10.

Chambers receives award

Mahi Cossifis Chambers, Class of 1986, received the 2003 "Award of the AMAC Chair" at the Airport Minority Advisory Council's (AMAC) 19th Annual Airport Business Diversity Conference held in Memphis, Tenn. Chambers served as the conference chair. The conference, co-sponsored by AMAC and the FAA, is the third largest aviation conference in the United States with 800 delegates in attendance.

AMAC is a national, non-profit, trade association dedicated to promoting the full participation of minority-owned, women-owned and disadvantaged business enterprises in airport contracts and employment opportunities. Chambers, Director of Staff Services with the Memphis-Shelby County Airport Authority, has been active with AMAC since 1996 and is the only AMAC volunteer who has received the award on two separate occasions. The award, the highest given by AMAC, is presented to an individual who has made an outstanding direct and personal contribution toward the success of AMAC.

Since 2001 AMAC has provided $28,000 in scholarship money to Delta State University students. Dr. Billy C. Moore, dean, College of Business, congratulates Chambers after the award announcement, where she was joined by her son, Justin.

SUPPORT "THE DELTA STATE FUND"

Join us in changing lives

Through your Annual Fund gift you become an important part of Delta State's "Wings and Roots Campaign" - a special fund-raising effort to strengthen the missions of teaching and service across the region and the nation.

Three ways your gift to the Annual Fund helps the University:

1. Your gift is an investment in the future of today's students.
2. You build a brighter future for Delta State.
3. You raise the alumni/friends giving percentage.

☐ YES! I want to help make a Delta State education possible for a new generation of students.

Charitable gift annuity versus a savings account

It used to be that a savings account could be counted on for reasonable earnings, and you would not have to give your savings much attention. These days, however, you may be looking for other options that produce a higher rate of return.

A Delta State University Foundation Charitable Gift Annuity could be the solution. "Depending on your age, you can receive a payout rate up to 11.3 percent for life from a Delta State Foundation Charitable Gift Annuity," states Dr. Kent Wyatt, co-chair of the DSU Foundation's Planned Giving Council and President Emeritus of the University.

Compare a charitable gift annuity and a savings account and see the differences. In the example below, the amount under consideration is $5,000, and the age of the donor/investor is 70, which entitles him or her to a 6.5 percent payout (see chart below).

Your cash flow is further enhanced because you are allowed a charitable contribution deduction. The deduction allowed the year in which the gift is made is $1,889. Although the annuity payout rate is 6.5 percent, this additional tax benefit produces an effective rate of return on the net cost of the gift of 7.2 percent.

Dorgan Center becomes reality

Delta State University student-athletes can now be the best they can be in the classroom and on the field.

The Billy Dorgan, Jr., Student Performance Center became a reality thanks to a $1 million pledge by Billy and Patty Dorgan, Sr. The Dorgan's generosity was due in large part to Billy Dorgan, Jr.'s great academic and athletic experience at Delta State University from 1999-2000.

The state-of-the-art complex totals 15,605 square feet. A free-weight area, general exercise area, and storage makeup the first-floor of the center. Two academic labs, a conference room, coaches and athletic directors' offices are on the second floor.

Billy Dorgan, Jr., was a standout place kicker for the Delta State University football program from 1999-2000. He helped the Statesmen to the 2000 Gulf South Conference and NCAA Division II National Championships. He owns the DSU and GSC record for point-after-touchdowns kicked in a season record with 71 in 2000. He ranks third on the single season scoring list with 109 points and his 128 career points scored is 11th on DSU's all-time list. He kicked 81 career PAT's, ranking him second on the career PAT's list.

Dorgan, Jr., set the DSU record for field goals made in a season with 13, but none were more important than the game winner that beat Southern Arkansas, 30-28, in 2000. The Statesmen trailed 28-27 in the final minutes. DSU's final drive stalled at the SAU 36-yard line. Dorgan kicked a 43-yard field goal with 47 seconds remaining to keep the Statesmen undefeated at 7-0.

Rushing reaches historic mark

The Delta State University Lady Statesmen head women's basketball coach Sandra Rushing was not necessarily aware of all the implications of her 77-39 win over the University of Arkansas-Monticello Cotton Blossom this January 15. Rushing understood that it was the eleventh consecutive win for her Lady Statesmen, a win that propelled her squad to the top of the GSC standings and an emotional home win. However, Rushing did not realize until the public address announcement following the game that she was the second fastest coach in the history of the program to reach 30 DSU career wins (only the legendary Margaret Wade reached 30 wins in a shorter time).

Rushing has a proud, long, and rich tradition with DSU. Rushing is no stranger to the Mississippi Delta, serving as a graduate assistant during the 1986-88 seasons. During Rushing's time as a graduate assistant, The Lady Statesmen advanced to the Final four twice, the Elite Eight once and had a combined 86-8 record.

NOMINATIONS NEEDED...

Nominations are needed for the DSU Coaches Hall of Fame and Sports Hall of Fame. Please send your letter of recommendation to: Bill Marchant, DSU Box B-2, Cleveland, Mississippi 38733

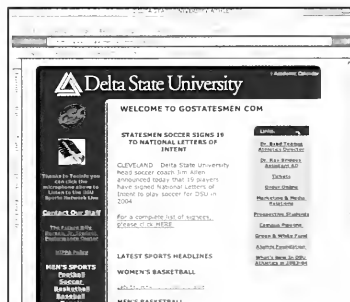

Rives wins 350th

Coach Steve Rives reached a personal milestone in a 56-54 win over the University of Arkansas-Monticello on January 15, winning his 350th career game.

Since taking over the Statesmen Basketball program in 1986, Rives' teams have captured three Gulf South Conference Championships (1992-93, 1996-97, 1997-98) and eight NCAA Tournament appearances (1986-87, 1992-93, 1995-96, 1996-97, 1997-98, 1999-00, 2001-02, 2002-03); including a trip to the Sweet 16 in 1992-93, a trip to the Elite Eight in 1997-98, and a trip to the Semifinals in 1986-87.

Rives is also a two-time NCAA Division II South Region Coach of the Year (1996-97, 1997-98).

Statesmen christen new website

The Delta State University department of athletics moved to a new address on the web this past year, opening a new website at <http://www.gostatesmen.com>.

"Short of handing over the design and maintenance to an outside company, having our own unique internet address will make Delta State athletics more accessible to our fans," says Sports Information Director Paul Smith. "This website will allow our fans to have easy access to up-to-date information."

DSU to induct seven in 34th Hall of Fame Class

Jo Lynn Davis

Ronald Davis

Vann Ellis

Aubrey Matthews

Mike Plumlee

Keith Williams

Larry Wood

Dr. Forest Kent Wyatt

The athletic department and the Hall of Fame committee of Delta State University announced the following seven Statesmen for the DSU Hall of Fame as members of the 34th class.

Jo Lynn Davis, Ronald Davis, Vann Ellis, Aubrey Matthews, Mike Plumlee, Keith Williams and Larry Wood all have the distinct honor of joining DSU greats such as "Boo" Ferriss and Margaret Wade as hall of fame alumni in the 2004 induction ceremony.

Jo Lynn Davis, a native of Wynne, Ark., was listed as a "good ball handler," "Gutsy, heady player," "and one of the best in the Gulf South Conference" in the 1987-1988 DSU women's basketball media guide. Yet, some would argue that, in the Lady Statesmen's run to a national championship in 1989-1990, Davis was much, much more.

A triple threat guard, Davis made the opponents pay with 444 career assists (sixth in the DSU all-time records), 106 three pointers (sixth on the DSU career list) and her .866 free throw percentage (ranking first in career statistics). Davis could drive, dish and shoot with the best of them. Thanks in part due to Davis, her years rank among the best women's basketball teams of all time, leaving a proud legacy in the footsteps of Margaret Wade.

Ronald Davis, originally hailing from Brandon, was a member of the 1981 and 1982 Delta State squad that finished with a 41-19 overall record and a 7-1 conference mark, finishing atop the Gulf South Conference and making an appearance in the DII World Series. Falling just short of a national championship, Davis managed to put up a great senior year, playing in 49 games, hitting .430 (third on the DSU single season list) and driving in 60.

Davis' name can be found throughout the DSU baseball media guide, as he holds a great deal of prestigious career records. Davis is currently fifth in home runs (28) and third in all-time walks (130).

Vann Ellis played at a time when statistics were deemed less important for defensive players such as centers. However, all one has to do is read the media guides in the mid-60s to appreciate the impact that Ellis had on the teams he played for.

Hailing from Moultrie, Ga., Ellis was one of the best defensive linemen the Statesmen ever had making a name for himself with speed uncharacteristic of a 6'2", 230 lbs. senior. It's no wonder in 1964 that Coach Horace McCool made Ellis the "big man in this year's attack." It was due in part to this attack that the Statesmen finished 8-1 in 1965, ranking among their best seasons of all time.

Aubrey Matthews was known specifically for his speed and intensity. Hailing from Moss Point, this 1982-1983 standout was the split end, special teams standout and sprinter and relay man for DSU's track team. Yet, Matthews is best known for his success and continuation of the proud legacy of Statesmen in the National Football League, playing for three NFL teams over a ten year career and putting up his best numbers as a member of the Detroit Lions.

Statistically speaking, Matthews best year was 1983 when he finished the year with 888 receiving yards, 53 receptions (good for third in the DSU record books) and five touchdowns. Matthews is tied for third on the single game reception list (11 against Troy State in 1983) and is one of only three men in DSU history to return a kick off the entire distance of the field, going for the full 100 yards. Matthews is also found in the record book with 6 touchdown returns in 1982, proving himself as a legitimate special teams threat.

Mike Plumlee played baseball with DSU for the 1991 and 1992 seasons under Coach Bill Marchant. Putting up extremely impressive numbers, Plumlee finished his career batting .358 with 17 doubles, five triples, 22 home runs and 79 runs scored.

Hitting .379 with 48 runs scored in 1992, his 18 home runs are still tied for first on the Statesmen all time single season records. His 1992 season ranks among the best in Statesmen history as Plumlee was honored as an ABC First Team All-American, a member of the All-South/South Central Regional team and was named the N.L. Cassibry MVP.

Keith Williams, a native of Gulfport, was highly touted in all facets of the game and lived up to the high expectations that came along with the duties of being a Delta State University quarterback. Versatile and athletic, Williams received letters for every year of play (including a red-shirt freshman year in which he played free safety) in his tour of duty as a Statesmen in 1983-1986.

It is not possible to look through the DSU offensive statistics without coming across Williams' accomplishments. Williams holds the record for consecutive completed passes (eleven in 1983), attempted 317 passes in a single season (good for third place in the DSU record book), ranks among the all time leaders in passing percentage (second all time with 56.2 in 1986) and has top ten records in single game passing yards, season passing yards and total offense.

To quote former coach Horace McCool, Larry Wood was "a heck of a football player. Whoever put him up for the Hall of Fame knew exactly what they were doing," adds McCool.

Wood played both sides of the game, in a time when it was not uncommon to do so, but in a way that was better then most. As the team's fullback and defensive lineman, Wood might not have put up the gaudiest numbers in the Statesmen record book, but made an impact nonetheless. As a three-year offensive and defensive starter, the Statesmen won 20 games in the years Wood played (1961-1963).

Dr. Forest Kent Wyatt will receive the Distinguished Statesman Award for his service as an administrator, supporter of DSU athletics and fine athletic achievements for the Statesmen.

Dr. Wyatt became the fifth president of Delta State University in 1975, and served in that capacity for twenty-four years, retiring in 1999. He is now serving Delta State University as president emeritus.

Dr. Wyatt is married to the former Janice Collins, and they reside in Cleveland.

As a member of the 1955-1956 DSU Statesmen basketball team, Dr. Wyatt was a part of one of the greatest seasons in Statesmen history, compiling a record of 15-7 and winning the NAIA District 19 Tournament, sweeping Birmingham Southern and Southern Mississippi. However, the team was unable to attend the NAIA championship due to Mississippi legislation. Dr. Wyatt played shooting guard for the team, and was known for his extraordinary shooting and presence on the floor. (See article on page 14.)

Greetings Members of the DSU Family:

The Division of Graduate and Continuing Studies is aggressively marketing its Graduate Studies Program. We solicit your support in our recruitment efforts as we strive to have a substantial increase in graduate enrollment. If you know of any prospective graduate students, please provide us with their names and telephone numbers. We can be contacted at grad-info@delta.state.edu or 662-846-4875.

Thank you in advance for your assistance with Graduate Studies.

Sincerely,
Tyron Jackson, Director
Graduate Studies

Statesmen sign 29 to National Letter of Intent

Twenty-nine faces will join the Delta State University football program this year, as coach Rick Rhoades announced the signing of 29 student-athletes to National Letters of Intent.

"I think our signings are a good start," says Rhoades. "I'm very excited about the guys that decided to come with us. We do have some more that we hope will come through. Our assistant coaches worked extremely hard and some good families put a lot of faith in our program; and as the head coach, I'm extremely grateful for both."

High expectations accompany new facilities for softball

The 2004 season looks full of promise for the always powerful Lady Statesmen softball program as they attempt to build upon their 38-14 record from the 2003 campaign. This year they plan to settle for nothing shy of a conference title followed by Gulf South Conference Tournament championship.

Coach David Kuhn is optimistic about the direction the program is going in, as well. Not simply from an athletic performance angle, but also in regard to the dedication the athletic program has shown to maintaining and creating new facilities for his Lady Statesmen and the positive turnout from fans at University Field, the GSC's premier softball facility.

Arguably on their way to creating the nicest softball field in all of DII athletics, the last few years have seen the addition of permanent bleachers and a state-of-the-art press box which houses electrical outlets, heating and air conditioning and a working area for media and the public address announcer. For the 2003 season a new dressing room, rest room and concession area were added. Yet, the biggest field improvement in 2003 was the addition of lights to the playing field.

This year, the Lady Statesmen will debut a new brick backstop as the athletic department continues to show their dedication to creating an incredible fan environment for softball. Offering season tickets for the first time in the history of the program, as well as charging at the gates, it is the goal of the athletic department to provide the finest product and the most entertainment for the fan possible. With 10 games scheduled under the lights in 2004, University Field will definitely be jumping with a palpable intensity.

Statesmen Sports Network expands

Expansion seems to be the buzz word around the Department of Athletics! The Statesmen Sports Network will be expanding its broadcast network into Yazoo City and Brookhaven for the 2004 baseball and softball season. WBKN 92.1 FM in Brookhaven and WYAB 93.1 FM in Yazoo City will add Statesmen baseball and softball to their programming line-up. Matt Jones, director of the Statesmen Sports Network, states, "We are extremely pleased to be able to expand our coverage of athletics. The added markets will give Statesmen and Lady Statesmen athletics an added presence in southwest Mississippi, Yazoo City, and the Jackson metro areas," Jones adds, "Each station will carry the Gulf South Conference schedule, as well as selected non-conference games." Dr. Brad Teague, director of athletics, states, "Increasing the coverage of Delta State athletics has been one of our primary goals since July. This expansion would not have been possible without the hard work and support of many alumni in Brookhaven and Yazoo City. Special thanks should go to Doug Sullivan for his work and dedication to this process." Teague adds, "This addition allows alumni, fans, and recruits the opportunity to follow Delta State athletics over three-quarters of Mississippi." In addition to these radio broadcasts, Statesmen and Lady Statesmen athletics can be heard on the World Wide Web. To access internet broadcasts log on to www.gostatesmen.com. For more information on the Statesmen Sports Network contact Matt Jones at (662)-846-4300 or mjones@deltastate.edu.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR...

My husband and I received a warm welcome on Saturday! After hugging a lot of necks and reliving the 1956 event.... of lining up for the bus ride to the national tournament....

And receiving disheartening news from the governor of our great state, the group was invited to a wonderful BBQ with fine fellowship. Then we all sat together at two very fine basketball games. We were thrilled to recognize and salute the "young" men on the 1956 Basketball championship team a halftime. What a good-looking group they were! Closing out the night at the Alumni House was a time for us to sit and visit with one another. We enjoyed it so very much. Last but not least, we received an invitation to eat in the college-dining hall for a delicious breakfast. What a treat!

Jet and I thank you from the bottom of our hearts for a great weekend in the prettiest and friendliest school in all of Mississippi.

Friends,
 Jean and Jet Rogers
 Class of 1958 & 1960
